TACA to Showcase the Importance of the Aggregates, Cement and Concrete Industries at TCEQ Environmental Trade Fair and Conference

AUSTIN, Texas [May 15, 2023] – The Texas Aggregates & Concrete Association (TACA) is excited to announce that it will be exhibiting at the 2023 TCEQ Environmental Trade Fair and Conference (ETFC) on May 16-17 at the Austin Convention Center. The annual show is considered the Lone Star State’s premier environmental education forum and attracts thousands of professionals from various industries, including government agencies, consultants and manufacturers.

At booth #1246, ETFC attendees will learn about the increased demand for aggregates, cement and concrete products to support the new construction and infrastructure brought on by Texas’ continued population growth, which is estimated at 1,000-1,400 new residents a day. TACA will also share information about the benefits of association membership.

“TCEQ’s Environmental Trade Fair and Conference is an incredible opportunity for TACA to highlight how TACA member industries provide the materials necessary to build the state’s essential infrastructure,” said Josh Leftwich, President and CEO of TACA. “Texas cannot achieve this remarkable growth without them.”

TACA’s focus on environmental stewardship aligns with the TCEQ’s mission to protect Texas’ public health and natural resources. TACA members adhere to sustainable practices that minimize the impact of the aggregate and concrete industry on the environment, including controlling dust and noise pollution, conserving energy and reducing water usage, while providing essential construction materials.
